DEDICATION

Dr. Strickland came to Perkinson Campus in 1960 as an Instructor of Biology. He has served as Department Chairman of the Science Department, and for the past five years has been Director of Instruction. Dr. Strickland holds the B.S., M.Ed., and Ph.D degrees.

In dedicating this yearbook to Dr. Strickland, we recognize him as a person devoted to his profession beyond the mere performance of his duties. Dr. Strickland is a consummate administrator and teacher whose interest in and rapport with both students and co-workers is recognized by all. His amiability and sense of humor are without equal.

To all those who know him, he is the embodiment of a dedicated man wholly concerned with the education and welfare of all the students. We, the Perkolator Staff, dedicate this, the 74-75 yearbook, to Dr. Clyde Strickland.

In recognition of all the clubs on Perkinson Campus we, the editors of 1974-75 Perkulator, appreciate the efforts of each club to promote interest in their various fields. We recognize, also, the time spent by the sponsors in their own free time usually, but their dedication is unceasing. We also recognize the efforts of each club member in keeping their respective organization together on the basis of mutual understanding and co-operation.

With these thoughts in mind, the combination of sponsor leadership and student participation will continue to grow and each club will continue to enlighten Perkinson Junior College.

We, the Editors, would like to express our thanks to those who put forth their efforts on this, the 1974-1975, Perkolator. This is the first separate annual since Tri-Campus joined together under one book, and we are extremely proud to have held this position for the first edition. Much time was put into comprising the highlights of this year into a book that will bring back memories, long after the students have gone into their respective careers.

We would especially like to thank Mr. Bob Rominger, our Sponsor, for his guidance and immense help. To the staff and everyone, we wish much success and happiness in the years to come.

MISSISSIPPI
GULF COAST JUNIOR COLLEGE

The Golden Year

From a modest beginning 50 years ago, Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College, now celebrating its golden anniversary, has grown to its present status as a leader among public supported two-year institutions in the state and nation.

With a physical plant valued at more than $13 million and a $6.5 million building program under way at its three campuses, the college today bears little resemblance to what it was in 1925.

That was the year Harrison-Stone County High School, organized at Perkinston in 1911, added post-secondary courses and became a junior college. Twenty-five students were enrolled in the freshman class. The physical plant was valued at $135,000.

Attending Gulf Coast's three campuses during the 1973-74 session were some 22,000 persons in all programs. More than 6,000 were fulltime.

It is unlikely that even the most far-sighted of the founders of the college envisioned the multi-campus concept that became reality in 1965.

It happened under the guidance of Dr. J.J. Hayden Jr., who has been affiliated with the college for 25 years, the last 21 as president.

Backed by a strong, cooperative board of trustees, Dr. Hayden steered to completion the Jefferson Davis Campus at Gulfport, and the Jackson County Campus at Gautier. What had become Perkinston Junior College in 1942 completed the campus triangle.

And Gulf Coast became the first junior college in the state, one of the first in the nation, to operate a "branch" system.

With the opening two years ago of the George County Occupational Training Center at Lucedale, Dr. Hayden's philosophy of "taking education to the people" was fulfilled. Now a Gulf Coast facility is within easy reach of citizens of this college district of Harrison, Jackson, Stone and George counties.

If modern-day expansions and improvements are impressive, so were some of the strides made by the college during its formative days.

There were the lean years. The original supporting counties of Stone, Harrison and Jackson, which joined the system in 1926, were comparatively poor. Their people, like those across the nation, were faced with a depression. Mississippi's economic backbone was agriculture. Balancing agriculture with industry was but a dream in the mind of the late Gov. Hugh White.

So agriculture was the main subject offered at the college in the late 1920's. There was plenty of land on which to practice the latest farming techniques. A group of Perkinston citizens in 1911 had donated 656 acres when they helped form the Harrison County Agricultural High School.

In addition to agriculture, the college in its opening year taught English, history, Latin, French, mathematics, science, Spanish and piano. Sophomore courses were added in 1926.

Offered today are academic courses that prepare students for upper division level degrees and a wide range of career programs, adult and continuing education, and other services geared to community interest.

The idea is to prepare students for professions, or to enable them to pursue courses of study leading to employment in vocational and technical fields.

There also are non-credit, "special interest" and adult courses which may be taken for enjoyment, to learn new skills, or polish old ones.

Superintendent of the high school when it added the college program was J. L. Denson, who had promoted the plan to offer courses beyond the 12th grade.

Among the other innovators of education at the college was C. J. Darby. He was elected superintendent in 1929 and held the position until 1941, when he was elected chancery clerk of Harrison County.

Under Darby's administration, the curriculum was enlarged and revised to qualify in 1929 for accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Darby also is credited with helping the college survive the depression years. He managed to pay off an $80,000 construction debt in the '30s. And he was able to meet the payroll with regularity by issuing checks that were convertible to cash.

Succeeding Darby was A. L. May. He served until his death in 1953. Under his guidance the college began offering vocational programs in cooperation with the Mississippi State Vocational Board.

May was instrumental in gaining the support of George County, rounding out the four-county district now supporting the college.

In 1953, Dr. Hayden was promoted from dean of men to president of Perkinston Junior College, becoming its youngest chief administrator at 33. When he assumed the post the college enrollment was 513, and high school 174. The college plant was valued at $1,123,000.

His new title came just 13 years after his graduation from Perkinston, where he played football and was a member of the track team.

After leaving Perkinston, Dr. Hayden, a native of Pass Christian, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. [J.] Hayden, entered the Air Force and later transferred to the Coast Guard for six years.

While in service he married Lillian Ruth Aschbacher. They are the parents of three children, Julius John III, Glover and Susie.

Dr. Hayden received the bachelor's and master's degrees from Mississippi State University and the doctorate from the University of Southern Mississippi.

His first teaching assignment was at Lee Road School, St.

Tammany Parish, La. He returned to Perkinston in 1950 as instructor of history. In 1952 he was appointed dean of men.

When Dr. Hayden was named president, it is reported that he did not have an acceptance speech prepared. As the story goes, he told Thelma Andrews, head cook at the cafeteria, about the problem.

Thelma, reputed to be an able talker, "ghost spoke" for his president, delivering a 30-minute acceptance address to the board of trustees.

In his first public statements, Dr. Hayden outlined for the college a philosophy which differs little from what it is today . . .

. . . Low cost education . . .
Training for employment . . .
Preparation for higher education . . . Service to the community.

Dr. Hayden was quick to propose the formation of a board of trustees building committee to guide college expansion programs. Outside expert advice was sought to determine what new facilities were needed to enable the college to keep pace with the times.

LIFE IN THE DORMS WAS STUDY -- AND RADIO INSTEAD OF TV

In 1955, a $885,000 building program was initiated under Dr. Hayden's leadership. Others have been approved since at regular intervals.

While he was expanding physical facilities to meet projected increases in enrollment, Dr. Hayden also was keeping an eye on the educational development of the college.

Vocational-technical programs alone have increased until today more than 50 are offered at the three campuses and the George County Occupational Training Center.

Recognized nationally for his contributions to junior college education, Dr. Hayden has received numerous awards. Among them are: --The Pace-maker Award (1966), presented jointly by "Parade" magazine and the National Education Association of the United States, Gulf Coast was recognized as a pacemaker in leading the way to better education of America's youth.

Active in professional and civic affairs, Dr. Hayden:

--is presently serving on the committee for National Library week.

--is an official with the Mississippians for Education Television.

--belongs to the Mississippi Economics Council committees on special education legislation.

--serves on the board of directors of Phi Theta Kappa, national junior college scholastic fraternity.

--represents Mississippi on the National Junior College Athletic Association committee on policies.

Dr. Hayden has also been president of the Mississippi Education Association and the Mississippi Association of Colleges.

Active in the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, Dr. Hayden has been chairman of the committee on standards and reports for junior colleges; the committee for admissions to membership for junior colleges; the nominating committee; commission on colleges; and the board of trustees.

His civic activities include membership in the Wiggins Rotary Club; Mississippi Coast Power Boat Squadron; Navy League, and Pine Burr Area Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Said one observer: "Dr. Hayden's leadership ability is apparent because it speaks for itself; the man has to say nothing.

And a board member, speaking of the college and its growth, said: "Gulf Coast stands tree-top tall across the country. This status has been achieved through a successful working relationship between the president of the college, the board of trustees and the supervisors and citizens of the four-county area."

Dedication

Because of his contribution to Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College, as detailed in the opening pages, this section of TRIDENT is respectfully dedicated to Dr. J.J. Hayden Jr.

The Earlier Years

While serving in the Coast Guard during World War II, Dr. Hayden married Lillian Ruth Aschbacher. The young couple (right) were the parents of two boys when they moved to Perkinston in 1950. This family picture shows John Julian III (STANDING BEHIND HIS FATHER) and Glover, a daughter Susie, was born later.

Proud Moment — Homecoming 1974

In commemoration of the Golden Year, a special tribute was paid Dr. Hayden at the Homecoming banquet in November at Perkinston Campus. Mrs. Hayden also was honored. Here they beam proudly after receiving the unexpected recognition.

Plaque Presented

In appreciation of his 25 years of service to Gulf Coast, Dr. Hayden is presented plaque by William Maslida, president of the college board of trustees.

An Exercise in Creativity . . .

Gulf Coast sponsored its fourth Creative Workshop in June at Perkinston Campus, where for the first time consultants and participants were afforded the opportunity to work in a live-in environment. Many boarded in the dormitories and ate in the cafeteria.

Mrs. Nell Henderson, director of the workshop which attracted more than 300 manuscripts from 100 authors, described the two-day session as "the best ever."

The workshop was produced with the assistance of the Mississippi Arts Commission and the National Endowment for the Humanities, Washington, D.C., a federal agency.

A Man of Letters

In March 1974, Richard Wordsworth (left), whose great-great grandfather was the English poet William, appeared at Gulf Coast's three campuses. He presented poetry readings in what he calls "The Bliss of Solitude." The English actor from Surrey recited verse written by his famous ancestor and quoted passages from Dorothy Wordsworth, Journal.

At a reception in his honor (below), Wordsworth greets admirers. With him are Gulf Coast President J.J. Hayden Jr. (RIGHT) and Mrs. Hayden.
